Norway Threatens War to Halt Trade Interference

AUTO MISHAPS IN MANSFIELD COST $271,000

That's Figure Estimated by Boals In Address Before Traffic Committee.

URGES 'LONG RANGE' PLAN

Sub-Committees Named For Investigation of Various Traffic Ills In City.

Traffic accidents in Mansfield last year cost automobile drivers the staggering sum of $271,000, a citizen's traffic research committee was told last night as it met to organize a campaign to cure the city's traffic ills.

The statement was made by Patrolman Frend D. Boals, the police department's safety supervisor, who recently returned from the Northwestern university traffic institute at Evanston, Ill., where he completed a three-week course in traffic engineering and education.

Boals said he made the estimate from figures compiled by the police department which disclosed Mansfield drivers figured in more than 1,200 traffic collisions during 1939. Of this total eight persons were killed and over 100 were injured.

"Let us look at that figure from a business standpoint as a board of directors of any company would and see what can be done to bring it down," he told the 50 members present.

He warned, however, against "rushing" any proposals urging the development of a "long range" program of education.

Boals pointed out that Mansfield was spending no funds for traffic engineering and lacked officers in the police department to conduct any effective sort of traffic enforcement.

"We can't justly criticize the police department until the manpower is boosted to reasonable limits," he told the group. "Then we can criticize if we believe an effective job of enforcement is not being done."

He said the National Safety council recommended 16 officers for traffic duty alone in a city the size of Mansfield, and that that number should constitute one-third of the entire police force.

Mayor William J. Locke, who selected Lewis Hartman to organize the citizen's committee, for the purpose of studying Mansfield's traffic problems, suggested a long range program of development.

He asked sub-committees to submit their proposals on that basis after a complete survey had

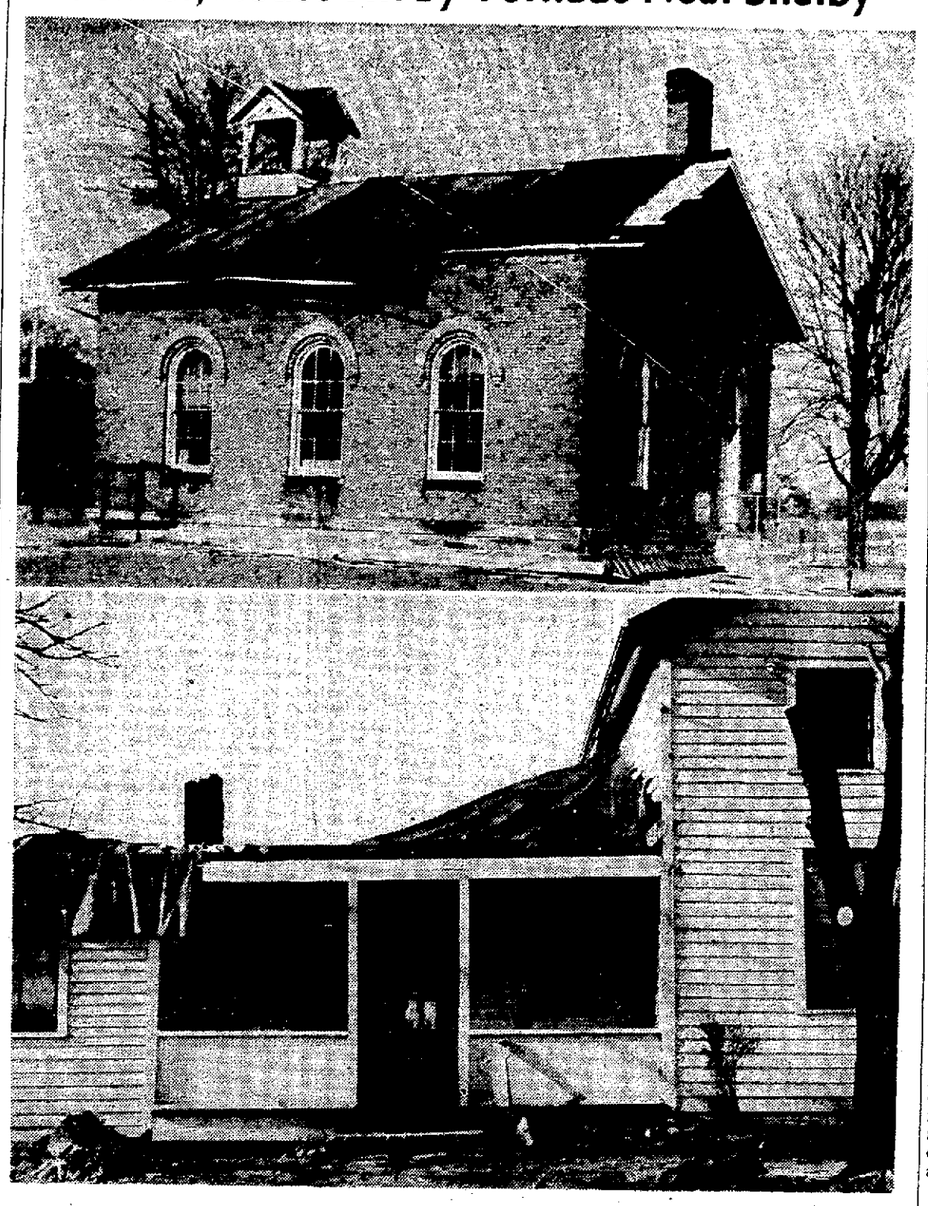
School, House Hit by Tornado Near Shelby



—News-Journal Photos.

Pictured here are the Gamble school (top) and the home of Albert Gray, 66, just south of Shelby which were among some 20 buildings damaged by a "baby tornado" that swept down on them Wednesday afternoon, though news of the damage did not become known until Friday morning. Workmen yesterday had placed a temporary covering on the unroofed school, in which 25 pupils escaped injury when the twister hit. The chimney on the house is the one which crumpled, bricks falling on Gray and knocking him unconscious.

GIRL REVEALS NEW DETAILS OF SLAYINGS

Police Prepared to Believe Essential Points In Girl's Account.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES — Eleven-year-old Chloe Davis unruffled by a quadruple slaying before her eyes and by two days of questioning by police and physicians, has confounded criminologists who would have blamed her for the deaths.

Chloe, her flaxen hair in pigtails, told such a startling tale, when her mother, Mrs. Lolita Davis, her two sisters and her little brother were found dead in their home Thursday, that authorities could not at first accept it.

Chloe said her mother hammered the three children to death, attempted to kill Chloe and then "tried to set my hair on fire and then made me hit her with the hammer until she stopped breathing."

Later, said Police Captain Edgar Edwards, Chloe elaborated upon the story, saying that after her mother "stopped talking" Chloe also struck the boy to "make him quit groaning." The two girls died after being taken to a hospital.

Wrists Slashed.

Chloe also added a day later, that her mother had forced her to bring a razor with which the woman could slash her wrists.

Just before Chloe "remembered about" the razor-slashing, officers learned for the first time—from an autopsy report—that Mrs. Davisdied not of head wounds but bleeding from cut arteries of the arms.

Edwards at one point in the questioning said he was prepared to accuse Chloe of all of the killings. Now he and other authorities have come to believe the girl's story is its essential points.

F. Barton Davis, the husband and father, insisted that "Chloe didn't do it, no matter what the police think. If she did, her mother made her do it. She believed she had the power of demons."

Autopsy Reported.

The county autopsy surgeon's post mortem examinations disclosed that while all three children—Daphne, 10; Deborah Ann, 7, and Marquis, 3 — died of skull fractures, Mrs. Davis' death was caused by loss of blood from cuts on both wrists.

In spite of the autopsy surgeon's findings Chloe still maintains her original and oft-repeated story: that after her mother had attacked the other children, she, at her mother's request, beat on Mrs. Davis' head until the handle of the hammer broke.

She Sticks to Her Story

Although police were at first inclined to disbelieve her, today they were about ready to admit that Chloe Davis, 11, above, had been telling the truth when she said that her mother killed two of her four children and then made Chloe beat her about the head until she was dead. An autopsy showed that the mother had also slashed her wrists, which was the cause of her death. The child then related that acting on her mother's instructions, had also beaten her small brother over the head until he was dead, to put him out of the pain caused by his mother's earlier brutal attack on him.

WARN ALLIES AND GERMANS ON SHIPPING

Another Decisive Week-End For Europe Predicted By Nazi Sources.

NOTES EXCHANGED

French and British Stand on Neutral Relations. Creates Crisis.

(By Associated Press)

Neutral Norway threatened today to go to war if necessary to prevent any one-sided interference with free shipping in her waters.

The warning, given before the Norwegian Storting (parliament) by Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht, was directed pointedly at the British-French allies, who have protested that Germany was receiving supplies through Scandinavian territorial waters, but it also took a slap at Germany for sinking Norwegian merchantmen.

The strong Norwegian stand was the high spot of a day that found the Allies prosecuting their war of economic blockade against Germany without noteworthy developments on the military front.

Authorized German sources, viewing the situation, said another "decisive week-end for Europe" had arrived.

Points Out Damage.

"If the allied powers should ask us to stop free shipping, which goes on according to generally acknowledged international law, and which they themselves have acknowledged," Foreign Minister Koht said, "this would either be of great damage to themselves or, if such hindrance of shipping should be one-sided against one party, and therefore in open conflict with the neutrality which we have pledged ourselves to maintain, Norway will then at once be at war."

The statement of foreign policy, in particular relation to iron ore exports from Narvik, Norway, took on deeper significance because it came after the British foreign office yesterday had handed to the Norwegian and Swedish ministers in London notes outlining the allied views on neutrality.

THREE INJURED IN TWO CRASHES

Mt. Gilead Students Hurt as They Return Home From Tour of Reformatory Here.

Three persons were injured yesterday afternoon and early today in two accidents near Mansfield. Two are still in the hospital.

They are: Robert Brown, 23, Shiloh, confined in the General hospital with a hip injury, and John O'Shaughnessy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Shaughnessy of Mt. Gilead, in the Marion hospital with head and internal injuries.

Dwaine Wiseman, Mt. Gilead, riding with O'Shaughnessy when their car overturned on U. S. route 42, south of Mansfield yesterday afternoon, was treated for bruises and lacerations.

The youths, seniors at Mt. Gilead high school, had accompanied their class here on a field trip to visit the Ohio State reformatory and the Westinghouse plant, and were on their way home at the time of the accident.

Authorities said the car skidded on the highway, rolled over twice, throwing Wiseman through the roof of the machine.

Brown was injured about 6 a. m. today when his car struck an embankment on route 39, three miles north of the city, state highway patrolmen said. Witnesses said Brown had been thrown clear of the car which was demolished.

POISONED PANCAKE

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Mrs. Stanley Ferguson, 38, former Akron, O., resident, died of poisoning a short time after eating a pancake. Her husband said she apparently used insect powder for pancake flour by mistake.

JAIL SECURITY

"Bossy" Gillis Pledges Old Jail on Appeal.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass.—(AP)—Former Mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis put up a jail today as security for a friend appealing a $100 fine for alleged violation of a state law regulating moving of buildings through the streets.

Gillis put up the old county jail, which he owns, as security.

REPAIR DAMAGE FROM TORNADO

Workmen Start Renovation of School, 20 Other Buildings Hit by Wind Storm.

Repair work was underway today on the Gamble school and nearly 20 other buildings in Sharon township which were damaged by a "baby tornado" Wednesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, nearly 30 pupils in the Gamble school who miraculously escaped injury when the wind tore the roof from the building were to have another week's vacation while the school building is being put in shape for use again.

Contract for putting a new roof on the structure was let to Roy Crall, Shelby, who will start work on the building Monday, Earl Brissell, member of the township school board, said today. Repairs will cost approximately $350.

About two-thirds of the metal roof on the country school south of Shelby was ripped off by the wind and scattered over the school yard while the pupils and their teacher, H. R. Cutnaw, huddled in the building.

Brissell said it was not likely that the pupils would be shifted to another school. It was expected to require about a week to put the one-room building in shape for use again.

The same storm sent a chimney crashing through the roof of the home of Albert Gray, a farmer who lives east of the school, injuring him.

RETURNS HOME

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — An army plane will return Rep. Paul W. Shafer (R.) of Battle Creek, Mich., to his home this week-end. Shafer suffered head and spinal injuries in an automobile accident near Salem three weeks ago.

FAIR WEEK-END

Forecast Promises Balmy and Clear Weather

A week-end of pleasant weather was promised today for Mansfielders who plan to get out into the open.

From a chilly 20 degrees above zero this morning, the temperature climbed rapidly today under clear skies and was up to 40 at noon. Yesterday's high was 45.

The weatherman predicted fair and warmer tonight and most of Sunday. It will become cloudy late Sunday and there may be some rain by night, he said.

The unseasonable cold this morning held the average temperature for the past 24 hours down to 32.5 degrees, 10 below normal.

93 Become DeMolays At Charter Ceremony

Masons From Mansfield and Adjacent Areas See Youths Initiated; Class Largest to Be Instituted In Ohio.

Impressive and colorful ceremonies last night in the John Simpson junior high school gymnasium, attended by 800 Masons from Mansfield and nearby towns, marked the institution of Baku chapter, Order of DeMolay, first to be organized in Mansfield.

The charter class of 93 boys, all between the ages of 15 and 21 years, is the largest ever to be instituted in the state. The chapter here is sponsored by Baku Grotto, after whom it is named.

Institution of the chapted was conducted by George N. Clark, Cleveland, state deputy of the order, and member of the Grand council, assisted by Charles L. Kafer, member of Baku Grotto and a past state master of DeMolay.

Two degrees were conferred on the class. The initiatory degree was conferred by the Steel City DeMolay Chapter of Lorain, while the degree of DeMolay was conferred by members of the Marion chapter of Marion.

Instituted along with the class were 10 members of the chapter's advisory council. The council is made up of Floyd Dent, "dad" of the chapter, Charles L. Kafer, Howard Schuck, monarch of Baku Grotto, J. Merton Holcombe, Harry Frick, Harry Solbow, Frank Stahl, Ralph Schauss, Meade K. Bates, and Charles Freehafer.

Special lighting effects were used during the degree work, and each member of the class was given a red rose to wea.?.

ORDER BALLOTS

Election Board Takes Low Bid Of $1,027 for Supplies.

The Richland county board of elections yesterday awarded a contract for printing 44,350 primary election ballots to the Lindeman and Almy company, Mansfield, on its low bid of $1,027.

The only other bidder was the Richland Printing company, Mansfield, which asked $1,080 to print the ballots.

Basing its estimates on the vote in recent primary elections, the board ordered 22,350 Democratic ballots and 22,000 Republican ballots.

Clerk A. F. Porter of the election board said the complete list of candiates for state, district and county offices was approved today when a court in Franklin county legalized the candidacy of Earl Kennedy, seeking the Democratic nomination for secretary of state. An injunction suit had been filed there to prevent his name from going on the ballots.

Burglar Enters Mansfield Home, Cooks Breakfast

Police were searching today for a burglar who apparently is a master at the culinary art.

The thief broke into a residence yesterday, ransacked an ice box until he found some bacon. Using the kitchen stove he prepared himself a meal and then took two packages of cigarets before leaving.

Mrs. J. G. Stevens, 16 Boughton avenue, said she had left home about 8 a. m. and when she returned about noon she found the house broken into and the dirty dishes on the table.

Police said a quantity of bacon and several bananas were missing, as well as a dish of candy. They said the thief broke the lock on a basement door to enter the house.

MONEY STOLEN

Plymouth Man Reports $869 Taken From Car.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—C. R. Archer of Plymouth, O., reported to police today that his automobile had been broken into while it was parked here and a black leather bag containing $869 taken.

Archer reported the money, in $50, $20, $10 and smaller bills, was taken after a ventilator window had been forced. A carton of cigarets, a box of cookies, an electric razor, camera and flashlight were taken.

HELD IN SHOOTING

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Police today held Clara Shennan, 24, for questioning in the fatal shooting of Roy Isom, 35-year-old negro. Arresting officers said the woman told them she shot Isom when he was choking her.

FLOOD RECEDES

Susquehanna Relaxes Grip on Wyoming Valley.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa.— (INS) — The flood-swollen Susquehanna begrudgingly relaxed its grip on the Wyoming valley today after eight days of terror.

The river was receding slowly after reaching a second flood crest of 26.20 feet last night. At 7:30 a. m. the river gauge registered 25.57, as compared with Monday's crest of 31.6.

The weather was perfect and the crisis was believed to have passed although a survey disclosed there was enough snow in the upper watershed to cause a new flood if the area had two days of rain.

Skies were clear and the sun was shining. The temperature was about 32 degrees.

CENSUS TROUBLE

Nose Counter Unwilling Guest Of Clients.

OLYMPIA, Wash. —(AP)— "I'm ready to leave now," a mar in the city jail informed the officer in charge. As this is usually the case, the jailer passed it. Protests became louder.

Patrolman James Heath, it developed, had been in a hurry to get home for lunch and had failed to inform his successor the census taker was making a business call.

Vandenberg Makes Final Drive for Nebraska Votes

PRIMARY TEST OF FARM VOTE SEEN TUESDAY

Dewey Forces Deny Report New Yorkers Imported To Speed Campaign.

(By Associated Press)

OMAHA, Neb. — A last minute drive for votes by supporters of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) in the Nebraska presidential preference primary next Tuesday quickened the tempo today in a farm state test of the vote-drawing strength of the Michigan man and Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney.

Lee Rankin of Lincoln, Nebraska manager of the Dewey forces, declared he had no immediate plans to "step up" his campaign. He denied quickly rumors that a crew of New York workers will be brought into the state to aid the Dewey cause.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, (R. ND.) will speak at Fremont, Neb., tonight in behalf of Vandenberg.

Endorsements.

Senators Capper of Kansas and McNary of Oregon endorsed Vandenberg as a friend of agriculture in messages to Charles S. Reed of Omaha, chairman of the Vandenberg committee of Nebraska.

McNary, Senate Republican leader, said that farm friends "will always be safe with Senator Vandenberg," and Capper telegraphed that "the American farmers can trust Arthur Vandenberg and their trust will not be betrayed."

Dewey's success in winning all 24 of Wisconsin's delegates to the National Republican convention stirred the Vandenberg forces into action. Agricultural Nebraska will send 14 delegates, bound only morally by the outcome of Tuesday's balloting.

Gannett Bid.

Meanwhile Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher whose name is not on the ballot with Dewey and Vandenberg, made a bid for farm support in a speech at Lincoln last night.

Declaring the farm problem is "essentially a price problem" he proposed setting up a monetary authority under congressional mandate to provide a dollar of staple purchasing power.

Lexington Father Admits He Told Son to Steal Saw

A Lexington father of seven children was under a year's suspended workhouse sentence today after he admitted he sent his 15-year-old son and another youth to a Lexington workshop to steal a power saw for him.

Only the pleas of Harry Linton, Lexington marshal, kept the father, Edward Wagner, 51, from going to jail. Linton told Probate Judge C. J. Anderson who sentenced Wagner yesterday that Lexington officials would have to provide for Wagner's family is he went to the workhouse. Wagner was charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Brought into court with his son and an 18-year-old Lexington youth, Wagner admitted he told the boys to get the saw for him because he needed it in his work. He makes crates and works on WPA when business is slack.

The boys said they dragged the heavy saw out of the shop of W. S. Ferguson, Lexington hybrid corn grower, and hid it in a ditch nearby. Wagner said he took it on home from there. He offered to buy the saw when Ferguson and Deputy Sheriffs Glenn Freeman and J. R. Hetler went to his home and found it.

Collins was burned seriously.

C. A. Sattison, New Haven, writes in to challenge the statement of R. J. Scott's Daily Scrapbook in the March 27th issue of the News-Journal to the effect that there are no so-called "hoopsnakes," and that no reliable naturalist ever saw one. Sattison says that he has seen at least three snakes traveling in this fashion—making a hoop of themselves and rolling along. This was some years ago and he says they are rarely seen in this part of the country now. It's an old argument and while naturalists deny the existence of such a snake, many of the old timers insist they've seen them.

Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, candidate for the Democratic nomination for sheriff at the May primary, is taking a lot of kidding from fellow Democrats these days. What they want to know is what ticket he's running on. "Robby" who purchased 15,000 match books for his campaign had already dug a deep hole in the supply when it was called to his attention that no mention of his party politics was on the folders. He says the printer erred.

During the question and answer period which followed the Spencer Irwin lecture at John Simpson junior high auditorium last night, Irwin remarked to one of his questioners that the Allies probably wouldn't need men from America to help win another war because warfare has changed its methods. 'Now," said Irwin, "machines do most of the work and fewer men are required." Whereupon a voice from the front row said: "Huh, just like industry," and got a round of applause.

BANK CLEARINGS UP 15 PER CENT

First Quarter Transactions Total $22,770,104; Jump For 15th Consecutive Month.

The upward surge in Mansfield's business for the first quarter of 1940 shoved the city's bank clearings up to $22,770,104, a 15 per cent increase over the corresponding three-month period of last year.

Every month so far this year has shown a marked gain over the same month in 1939 and the clearings last month climbed to $7,496,162, aproximately $325,000 more than the figures for March, 1939, Barney Burns, secretary of the Clearang House association, reported today.

New car sales, also a reliable business barometer, were expected to show a decided gain over the first quarter of 1939 although sales figures for last month were not available today. Sales for the first two months of this year were 67 per cent ahead of combined January and February sales in 1939.

March was the 15th consecutive month in which Mansfield bank clearings showed an increase over the corresponding month of the preceding year, indicating a continued trend upward in the city's business and industrial fields.

March was the seventh consecutive month which produced clearings above the $7,000,000 mark. In the best month of 1938, clearings were only $6,775,000.

Consider Adding 4th Civic Music Concert In 1940

There was a possibility today that Mansfield music devotees will have four concerts next season instead of three, and of the same high calibre as those of the past three seasons.

This plan was tentatively decided upon last night when the executive board met at the headquarters of the Mansfield Music association met in the Ohio Fuel Gas office.

If 1,150 memberships to the association are obtained this year, as workers are confident will be, there probably will be four concerts next season. This figure is an increase of 100 members over last year's roster.

The membership campaign closes at 9 p. m. today and at the close of the check-up members of the executive board and the talent committee will meet to decide on the artists for the 1940-41 season.

The 1,150 membership represents the seating capacity of Senior high school auditorium.

U. S. VIOLATES NEUTRALITY AND MUST KEEP IT UP, IRWIN SAYS

By KEN WOODMAN

The United States is daily violating its neutrality in the European war, Spencer Irwin, Cleveland newspaperman and former Mansfielder, told an audience of 300 in John Simpson Junior high school auditorium last night during a lecture sponsored by the Delano lodge.

Irwin recommended that the "violations" continue and that the U. S. give every possible assistance to the allies without actually entering armed forces in the conflict.

"The United States violated traditional neutrality when it withdrew its ships from combat zones and gave up its right to trade with all belligerents in all materials except contrabrand. It violates neutrality everytime it permits an armed merchant ship to enter out ports and remain for more than 24 hours—and I haven't heard of any of them being chased out," Irwin declared.

"The allies must win," he continued, "because victory for the totalitarian powers in Europe would mean that the U. S. would have to become a totalitarian state, in fact, to carry on its European trade."

Irwin charged that the world has been suffering from a "Versailles complex" and that the peace which ended the World war was not nearly so harsh as the terms the Germans inflicted on the Rumanians and Russians before the general conflict ended.

He said German internal difficulties had resulted solely from the fact that Germany lost the war.

Giving a detailed account of the events leading up to Munich, Irwin blamed Sir Neville Henderson, British minister plenipotentiary, and the French for selling out the Czechs. He said that Henderson and the French ordered former President Benes of Czechoslovakia to accept Hitler's terms and warned Benes that if he accepted aid which had been offered by Russia the two western democracies would side with Germany against the little World war republic.

"Adolf Hitler and Joe 'Butch' Stalin aren't pals," Irwin declared. "Their alliance will last as long as it is expedient." He said Hitler had not expected the allies to make war and therefore had never expected to make concessions in the Baltic area and Finland according to his agreement with Russia.

As a result of this agreement Irwin said he expected further moves in the Baltic.

"What turn the war will take next no one can predict, however," he asserted, "because no one can predict Hitler."

Irwin was introduced by N. J. Scanlon. A lengthy question and answer forum followed the lecture.

REDS' REFUSAL TO GIVE NAMES CAUSES ACTION

Congressman Will Introduce Bill to Eliminate All Secret Activity.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In a new move to "smoke out" the names and activities of Communists and Fascists in this country, a member of the Dies committee today disclosed he will introduce a bill requiring all such groups to file detailed public reports with the state department.

The disclosure was made by Rep. Jerry Voorhis (D) Calif., who declared he hopes in this way to accomplish by law what the committee meanwhile is seeking to accomplish by trying to compel Communist and Fascist leaders to "talk."

Become Martyrs.

"I think my bill will pass, and I think it will provide a much better way to get this matter into the open," Voorhis said. "Those fellows don't mind being cited for contempt—they just become martyrs."

Organizations compelled to register under the Voorhis bill would include "any political party" or other group which gets funds from foreign governments, whose policies are shaped by a foreign country, or whose membership is largely foreign.

They would be required to make full reports with the state department at stipulated intervals.

Foreign Groups.

"By defining the groups in accordance with their foreign connections we are not aiming at anything American." Voorhis explained. "But those definitions will include both the Communist party and other organizations like the German Bund.

By making them file complete reports, we will lift the aura of secrecy and force them to work openly as any real American organization should work."

Meanwhile Chairman Dies of Texas defended the method of seizing Communist party records through lawful means—with subpoenas and search warants. This was in reply to the issuance by a federal judge in Philadelphia of warrants charging violation of civil rights, against two committee investigators who led a raid on the party's Philadelphia headquarters Tuesday.

TRUCKER FINED

Judge Suspends $200 of $250 Penalty on P. U. C. O. Charge.

Maynard Baith, Lincoln heights, charged with violation of the state public utilities commission regulations, was fined $250 and costs in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $200 of the fine and placed the trucker on probation for two years.

Baith was accused by T. E. Grimm, special investigator for the P. U. C. O., of hauling for hire without obtaining a certificate from the commission. He is the third local trucker to be arrested on the charge within the past month.

FILES CHARGES IN AUTO SALE

Solicitor Acts After Accused Ignores Court Citation.

A warrant was issued in municipal court today for the arrest of a Mansfield man after he failed to appear in court this morning to answer charges of failing to deliver a certificate of title for an automobile he allegedly sold.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward signed the warrant for the arrest of Nicholas Mott, 297 Sturges avenue, when he failed to appear. He had been cited yesterday by police.

Charges were filed by Hamp Rodgers, Mansfield, who said he puchased an automobile from Mott last July and has been unable to obtain the title for the car. He told the court he had requested it on several occasions.

American Citizens Show New Way to Be Stupid, Intolerant and Ignorant

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THE TROPHY for reaching the highest point in ignorance should go to citizens of Memphis, Tenn. The Beethoven club of that city booked the Don Cossack Chorus for next season's concert program in Memphis, and was completely flabbergasted, according to Variety, when citizens set up such a howl of protest that the club finally threw up its hands and cancelled the booking.

The good citizens wanted to show their patriotism by protesting anything that savored of Russia and they objected to bringing in "those Red Russians who helped whip poor little Finland and were agents from Moscow."

And so the Don Cossacks who are White Russians, and among the most tragic people in Europe because they have no country and are just as much victims of Soviet Russia as was Finland, are persecuted anew. And this time not by the intolerance and stupidity of Russia but of Americans.

Intolerance and stupidity, always a dangerous combination, are very much same the world over, whether in Russia, Germany, England or America.

SPENT last week-end in Cincinnati and about six hours in the swanky night club and gambling casino across the river in Kentucky. Which was something of a revelation to an old fashioned gal who begins to yawn every night at 10 o'clock. But even though mine host gave all of his women guests "foldin' money" to feed into the slot machines or to play Monte Carlo, hazard, chemin de fer, chuck-a-luck or what ever appealed to us, they failed to innoculate me with the gambling fever. I can watch the little dice roll or the wheel spin and yawn right in the face of the operator. The silver dollar slot machines simply fascinated me—with their rhythmic barrage. And I timed the dollars. One went into the machine every ten seconds, (not my dollars gawdforbid) and people were simply begging for a chance to get near one of them.

I was so fascinated with the faces of men and women who exchanged big bills for little checks at the gambling tables that I passed up the Ted Lewis floor show to watch the gamblers. Are people born with that madness or do they acquire it?

Later I asked my host if there were any gambling laws in Kentucky. "Oh, my yes," he said. "Very strict ones, and the county sheriff wages a campaign against gambling once each year—and always reports that there isn't any."

Aren't people and things more fun?

NOTES On The Cuff: Gladys Swarthout's diction in singing is the most perfect I've ever heard. You could understand every word she sang. . . . "Grapes of Wrath," a new high in film artistry, will be a floperoo at the box office, not only because movie goers don't like horribly depressing stories, but because it presents a Problem that makes them think, and no one goes to movies to think. . . . Canada continues to defend James Cromwell for his incriminating speech, and is making a hero of him—which will undoubtedly aid him when he enters the New Jersey senate race. . . .

John L. Lewis of the CIO intimates that if he is forced to form a third party it will be made up of Labor's Non-Partisan group, The National Youth Congress, Catholics, farmers, old age pensioners, Townsendites and Negroes. Something about that combination that rings false. Could it be the Catholics and the Communistic National Youth Congress? Or the Labor group and the Negroes?

DR. ROY I. CURRY, Mansfield physician who died of a heart attack this week, was one of that rapidly disappearing group of "family doctors," who for generations have been the bulwark of human morale under mental and physical strain.

He was one of those old fashioned servitors of humanity who got out in the middle of the night and drove over country roads to alleviate suffering when he knew very well he'd never receive a cent for it. Ill himself, he recently spent most of the night with a confinement case in a poor home in the country, with only the husband and the woman's mother to aid him.

Which may not have been according to the dictates of Good Business but it must have given him a lot of personal happiness and satisfaction.

ONCE again this section of Ohio faces the loss of its CCC camp at Mohican State park and orders have been received to close the camp on April 15. Which means that this beautiful nature spot, the only one of its kind in this part of Ohio, will not have the maintenance and supervision which has made it one of the loveliest retreats in the state.

The park is immediately available to about 6,000,000 people. The average number of persons using it on Sundays throughout seven months of the year was 3,000 this past year, while on holidays there were as many as 5,000.

But there is still a very small chance that the order to close it may be rescinded. The house recently appropriated an additional $67,000,000 to maintain the present CCC camps, and if the Senate also approves this amount, the camp may be retained here. You can wire or write your two senators—Robert A. Taft and Vic Donahey, care The Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C., and express your opinion.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Paulette Goddard was making color tests in the bright sunshine of an outdoor set. She was getting ready to play a half-breed hell-cat in "North West Mounted Police," and about a hundred spectators, mostly male, and workers were in the audience.

After the first test, a change of costume was in order. It was a long way to the wardrobe and dressing rooms. A wardrobe woman borrowed Gary Cooper's leather packet, tied it about Paulette's waist, slipped off her skirt under it and slipped on another. Then she repeated the routine with the coat tied about Paulette's shoulders while the blouse was changed.

The lookers looked. Paulette smiled. Modesty and efficiency had met, bowed and gone on serenely.

John Carroll would have you believe he was happier being Monogram's Clark Gable than Metro's Gable No. 2. And John Carroll can spin other amusing yarns, too.

Gene Towne and Graham Baker, who as writers used to keep Joe Breen on the alert, have been making only standard, innocuous subjects ("Swiss Family Robinson," "Tom Brown's School Days," etc.) since they became producers. And when Frank Capra worked for Columbia, he never would consider more than one story at a time. Now that he is working for himself he is preparing two stories for future production besides "The Life of John Doe"—on his one-picture Warner deal. (Or maybe Capra merely didn't talk about the others he was thinking of.)

"I Married Adventure," Osa Johnson's fine new book, is already in film—release awaiting announcement of the tome's selection by one of the national book-a-month clubs.

Bob Hope, unable to borrow Jack Benny's Rochester for his own "The Ghost-Breakers," is using Willie Best—and dubbing him Syracuse. . . .

Accustomed as we are to exploitation's Colossals, Gigantics and Supers, we here know but little of what is Stupendous. I quote an ad from an India periodical: "Fatigued with feverish fury of excitement when forsaken by her husband. . . . She threw her bashful cloak of modesty and ran after him. . . . See how they met in the thickest and yet most comical moment in 'Laxmi, Laxmi,' Circo's greatest festival of the year!" . . .

Great moments in contemporary history, from a publicity bulletin: "Before a group including Mr. Paul of Charles of the Ritz, Pierre of Antoine's and other hair stylists, Monsieur Andre of Paris demonstrated at his Salon in Sunset Plaza Square a new and revolutionary method of permanent finger-waving without the use of a machine or machine-less pads." And to think I missed it!

Gower Gulch—which sprang into the limelight with a shooting—was practically deserted shortly after the affair. . . . Most of the cowboys had answered a mass movie call to play roughneck convicts, and the others were dodging the news cameras. . . .

Jean Parker is after shedding that little-girl stuff and grabbing sophisticated assignments—and with only one divorce to her name!

CHAPTER IX.

Elaine didn't push her protests beyond that, thankful that O'Malley was going to accompany her. She had been worried about getting lost and wasting valuable time. And 15 minutes later as she walked with Jack down Eleventh street she found that she had good reason to be thankful, for, after they had gone only a block they came to an intersection marked West Fourth street and Eleventh street. Confused by this she wondered what they would do. Jack, laughing at her bewilderment, offered no explanation but simply led her across the street and after a walk of about ten minutes they came to the house in which Monticelli had his studio.

Thanking Jack, she ran up the steep stoop—she wondered if all the stoops in Greenwich Village were so steep—and rang the doorbell. After a short wait the door was flung open by a squat, swarthy-complexioned middle-aged man whose face was undoubtedly the ugliest Elaine had ever seen.

"Well? Well?" he snapped, when she offered no word. "What is your business, young lady?"

Elaine colored, ashamed of her rudeness. "Are you Mr. Monticelli?"

"I am the great Monticelli," he declared proudly. His fiery eyes searched her eager face. "And you—don't tell me that you want to sing—too!"

Elaine quailed before the cutting sarcasm in his voice, and then, staring defiantly into his eyes, she drew her shoulders erect. "I do, Mr. Monticelli. I have a letter of introduction from Clara Blanchard."

He motioned her into the hallway and did not take the letter until after he had closed the door. "Every one wants to sing," he lamented, "but always Monticelli gets the dunces." Smiling to himself, he opened the envelope and quickly read the letter.

Clara had given her the letter sealed, and unaware that her chum had written that she would pay for the lessons, Elaine stood shaking with suspense as the great teacher read it. Would he or wouldn't he accept her as a pupil? And if he did consent to teach her, would she be able to afford the lessons? But of course she would: she'd find the money somehow, she decided grimly. If she didn't there would be no sense in staying in New York. And she couldn't go back to Lynville—not after the way Eric had jilted her.

* * *

She tried to guess Monticelli's answer as he glanced up from the letter, but his face was inscrutable. Without a word he motioned for her to follow him down a long, dark hall, and after a few moments Elaine found herself in a large, sunlit room. An elderly woman was seated before the piano accompanying a tenor up and down the scales. Monticelli swaggered over to her.

"Maria," he asked in a booming voice, "do I know a Clara Blanchard?"

Elaine thought he was being rude to interrupt the practise in this manner but the young tenor continued with his scales as though no one had entered the room.

Maria smiled slyly. "Clara Blanchard's father paid your fine that time you went over to the Metropolitan and threw a tomato at Madamoiselle Costa."

Monticelli laughed exultantly. "I hit her, too. Costa is a cow and she should never have been permitted on the stage. She moos!" He whirled fircely upon Elaine. "Do you moo?"

Confused and amused, Elaine shook her head. "I hope not, Mr. Monticelli."

"We'll see about that," he said crisply; but his manner had softened and Elaine thanked her lucky star that she had laughed. Apparently Monticelli enjoyed people laughing at his antics.

"Stop that bellowing," he shouted now, turning to the tenor. "I want to hear what she can do."

* * *

The tenor smiled and walked over to the chair. Elaine, as she moved over to the piano, felt herself shaking with fear. Suppose—suppose she wasn't good enough! suppose he told her that she—she mooed! She cleared her throat self-consciously and wished suddenly that she had never decided to become a singer. But as Monticelli indicated the several selections he wanted her to sing, her fright swiftly vanished. The great teacher had now completely discarded his brusque manner of a few moments ago and was all kindness and sympathy.

"If you weren't nervous you couldn't be a great singer," he told her with a smile. "If you have the temperament of a clod you have the voice of one. Just do your best."

As he finished speaking Maria broke into the introduction of the song and as waves of exquisite melody floated through the room Elaine suddenly forgot about everything except that here was music, glorious, ecstatic music. As she received her cue she began to sing in that haunting, rich contralto voice which had made her a sensation at the school.

* * *

Softly at first, then louder and fuller, each note came from her throat, vibrant and true; she began to lose herself in the role of the brokenhearted girl who was singing the lament. The tempo quickened—the notes tinkled like falling icicles on a frosty morning. Departed lover! Return—return! Her song was the song of life—harsh—bitter—despairing life. The tinkle vanished as the plea became more sombre, a dreary note coloring the song as, realizing the lover would never return, the woman cast about for a means to end it all. Warmly, sympathetically, Elaine interpreted each note's despairing throb, wrung the last tear from the words. The music thundered to a majestic crescendo and all was still—terribly, terribly still.

There were nervous tears in her eyes as Elaine turned to face the great Monticelli. She felt limp, breathless, as weak and heartbroken as the character she had portrayed. Not attempting to conceal this, she sank upon a chair close to the piano. She glanced again across the room, was surprised to find Monticelli staring at her with a peculiar, fierce blazing in his eyes.

"Again," he commended after a moment. "But do not overdo it. The world doesn't come to an end when a man jilts a woman."

"It does—for the woman," Elaine contradicted, rising to her feet.

He seemed to explode from the chair. "You are impertinent!" her cried, storming over to her. "I forbid you to be impertinent! If—if you do so again I shall slap your face!"

Elaine felt as though every last drop of blood in her body must have risen to her cheeks. Tears half blinded her; unaccountably she wanted to cry. Unaware that the events of the past two weeks had drawn her nerves as taut as bowstrings, she inwardly denounced herself for being so rude. She started to apologize to Monticelli and was surprised when she looked up to see that he was again seated in his chair across the room, grinning like a Cheshire cat.

"No," he said with a pleased shake of his head, "you have not the temperament of a clod. I think my studio will be very interesting now."

Elaine at first did not dare believe her ears but catching the full import of his remark she rushed eagerly across the room. "You mean you'll accept me as a pupil?"

He nodded. "You have a good voice, Miss Warburton. I will teach you. It will take time and will mean hard work but some day, perhaps, you might even get to the Metropolitan."

Elaine smiled happily at him, but then, remembering that she might not be able to afford the lessons, the pleased glint left her eyes. "How—how much are you going to charge me?" she asked after a moment's hesitation.

He shrugged his shoulders. "I do not charge those with real ability. There are enough 'mooers' who are anxious to pay me for my time. But that is unimportant. When do you want to come for your lessons?"

"I don't know," Elaine told him, dazed by his generosity. "I have to work, you know. I think my hours will be from nine to five."

"Well, I'll work something out," he said shortly. He made a gesture of impatience. "We've wasted enough time. Do that song over again."

Elaine walked happily over to the piano and again sang the song. She sang it the rest of the afternoon, with Monticelli storming and raving and abusing her unmercifully. Once he told her she was a cow. A dozen times he told her to return to California. But always he asked her to sing again, and when she became tired he repeated the process with the young tenor who had remained quietly in the studio.

The sun was low in the sky when Elaine went down the steps of the house and began walking home. Humming happily to herself, she had gone hardly halfway down the block when a hand fell lightly on her arm. Turning, she saw it was the young tenor.

"My name is Roul Hanson," he told her. "Want to eat somewhere."

His confident manner infuriated her, but then, realizing she would probably see a good deal of him at the studio and not wishing to antagonize any one until she became better acquainted, Elaine smiled and shook her head. "I'm sorry; I have to go home. I have some work to do."

"Oh, don't be silly," he said, annoyed. "You can eat first and work afterwards." His eyes became shrewd. "Are you afraid of me?"

The question had a familiar ring and Elaine recalled that Melvyn had asked the same thing before he kissed her in the hospital. But this time there wasn't going to be any kissing done!

"I told you I had work to do," she reminded him sharply.

"Oh, I know," he said with a cynical twist of his lips. "You're the coax-me type. Well, I don't think I'm in the mood for that tonight. Be seeing you." He tipped his hat and walked nonchalantly away.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—accidents are unpleasant affairs even when nobody's killed.

Thomas Dewey has now turned 38, and the cub reporter is wondering if that isn't pretty well up in years to be running for president.

It has been more than three hundred years since Cervantes thought to write: "Ride not a free horse to death"—but promoters of fantastic pension plans are not inclined to heed the warning.

When Good Citizens Unite To Act

WHAT an aroused citizenship can do to restore decency to a graft-ridden city was convincingly demonstrated in Kansas City this week when a large majority of voters supported a United Campaign ticket and completely routed the Pendergast gang, which had continued in control even after old Tom Pendergast himself had been sent to the penitentiary.

Kansas City has had a municipal charter and a city manager form of government for the past fourteen years, but control had passed to political plunderers and the work of rescue proved a tough job. The reform movement started with the vote scandals of 1936, was given impetus by a federal probe through which Pendergast was convicted of income tax evasion and sent to the pen.

Only in recent months, however, a citizens' organization got into action, with thousands of women enlisted in the movement, and this week's triumph is being heralded all over the country as evidence of "the valuable work that women can do at the polls when a great civic issue is at stake."

In the Kansas City result is also seen the advantage of non-partisan choice of local officials, city and county, on the basis of qualifications and dependability, rather than allowing partisan bias to influence votes.

The Right To Criticize Courts

FINAL outcome of the case in which an offended circuit court judge in St. Louis assessed a "contempt of court" fine against the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and imposed jail sentences on an editorial writer and cartoonist in the employ of that newspaper, will be awaited with considerable interest by every newspaper in the country—and should be deemed equally important by every American citizen.

It appears that the judge who imposed these penalties resented newspaper criticism which followed his ruling in several cases that came before him and that the criticism was not directed toward any pending issue.

It will be noted, in cases such as this, that the judge assumes full authority to determine guilt and penalty, and that it is only through appeal to a higher court that persons charged with contempt have any recourse.

The judge of a court is a public employe, just as are persons elected or appointed to fill other offices, and his acts are as reasonably subject to scrutiny and criticism as those of any other official.

Painful experience has proved that there are crooked judges, just as there are crooks in other positions of responsibility and trust, and it would be far from the intent of the Bill of Rights for a judge to be able to prevent adverse criticism of his completed acts by holding the threat of "contempt of court" over newspapers or individuals.

In an editorial comment on the judge's action, Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the Post-Dispatch, said: "If a newspaper is to be gagged by being haled into court whenever a judge feels the sting of editorial criticism, that means the end of the power of the press to tell the people about the failures and errors of their courts. . . . The Post-Dispatch will continue honestly, fairly and sincerely to criticize the courts."

It will be remembered that Martin T. Manton, ex-judge of the United States circuit court of appeals in New York, also objected to newspaper criticism of his judicial acts. Manton, you will recall, was convicted, on June 3, 1939, of "selling justice while on the bench" and is now serving a prison sentence. Disclosure of his nefarious practices came through newspaper articles—which incensed him greatly and, at the time, might have appeared to constitute "contempt of court."

Successful Forum Series

CONCLUSION this week of the series of five open forum meetings, under auspices of Catholic societies of Mansfield, makes it timely to again emphasize the value of such group gatherings for discussion of subjects of public interest and concern.

During the progress of this series lecturers from the faculty of De Sales college, Toledo, spoke on topics of national and international interest and each talk was followed by a question and answer period in which many in the audience participated.

It may well be hoped that patronage and interest in this series was sufficient to encourage the sponsoring groups in St. Peter's church to make similar forum meetings a regular part of their year's program of community activities.

Promises Are Easily Made

TYPICAL of the Martin L. Davey political technique is his promise that if he is again elected governor he will work for repeal of the retail sales tax, which he calls "obnoxious and annoying."

There can be no quibbling with Davey's assertion that the sales tax is "obnoxious and annoying"—try to think of a tax that isn't—but the sales tax turned about forty-five million dollars into the state treasury last year to help pay expense of state government.

Davey's extravagant administration, which was repudiated by voters two years ago, does not tend to encourage confidence that economical handling of public business could be expected under his system of political patronage, but he volunteers no information as to his plans for other taxes to take the place of the sales tax.

He does say, however, that he would not let the schools, relief and old age pensions suffer, although it was his squabble with the federal administration that resulted in withholding of a federal pension allotment to which Ohio is entitled but did not receive.

The Finns express gratitude for contribution of a million cakes of soap—which they can probably use to better advantage than the soft soap sent to them while the war was on.

Word comes that Arabs are trading in their camels as down payments on motor cars—but nothing is said about the salesman walking a mile.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

ABOARD the Commodore Vanderbilt — A sidelight of this trip was that Harry Oshrin and Jake Wilk traveled as far as Reno with us and then went on to the coast. As Oshrin is the owner of "Tobacco Road," this may indicate the Hayes office ban on that blunt and brutal comedy is about to be lifted, and that, after seven years on Broadway, it is to be made into a motion picture.

How much of this play, other than the title, can be salvaged for the films I wouldn't know, but Jake Kilk is the shrewdest story scout in the business, and if he is taking Oshrin to Los Angeles, it is for the purpose of talking terms with Jack Warner and not for the ride.

Jake Wilk is an old hand at buying novels and plays, and even back page feature stories for the movies. When he wasn't studying 24 courses in English Literature, which means an exhaustive study of plot, he was in the theater studying plays, or earning a fat living as a literary agent. Since 1929 he has scouted story material for Warner Brothers, and the list of his "buys" shapes us as something of a best-seller list through the last ten years.

* * *

IT WAS Wilk who succeeded in obtaining the rights to "Anthony Adverse," but it required a trip to Europe and a dash to Hollywood to do it. "Oil For the Lamps of China," "Boy Meets Girl," "The Male Animal," "Fugitive From a Chain Gang" and "Brother Rat" are just a few of the name plays and stories he has corralled.

I asked Jake point blank whether he had bought "Tobacco Road." He said, "That's a nice tie you have on, but it ought to have a figure in it; I don't like solid colors."

I asked Harry Oshrin point blank. He said, "Who me?' I'm just along for the ride."

After putting a curse on both of them I went back to reflecting on the curious, unbelievable history the "Road" has had. It was damned by the critics. It is replete with sordid atmosphere, and every other line is an unsavory puddle.

Yet, it caught on. It hung by a thread for a week, and nearly died. Then it hit with a big loud bang. That was seven years ago, and it is still running on Broadway. No other play in the entire history of the theater has even come close to this mark.

SOVIET ENVOY

'Collective Bargaining' Pretense Cloaks Move Toward Socialism

By GUS W. DYER
Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

IT IS the fixed policy of socialists and communists in this country to promote radical and revolutionary policies under high sounding, conservative names and phrases.

The widespread ignorance with reference to both Americanism and radicalism makes this policy very effective. Socialism is designated as "industrial democracy." Communism is represented as the rapid extension of cooperatives and government ownership and syndicalism—a radical form of socialism—is hidden under the name of "collective bargaining."

The real purpose of the Wagner Law, it is believed, was to give to employes in industry a monopoly control over industry in order that employes might use industry primarily to advance their own interests. In proof that this was the purpose of the law, the "sit-down strike," under the direction of one of the chief leaders of the administration, immediately followed the confirmation of the law.

The "sit-down strike" was the means by which the radicals in France turned over the government to the control of the socialists, and it was the means selected under the Wagner Law to give a monopoly control of American industry to the employes of industry.

The socialist sit-down strike was crushed by American patriotism, but it is interesting to note that it was never condemned, not even criticized adversely, by the chief executive. The unanticipated uprising of the American people against the socialist sit-down strike forced a change of strategy in the task of turning over the control of American industries to radical labor leaders.

* * *

THE one great obstruction to industrial stability and industrial progress today is this un-American radical Wagner Law. It is antagonistic to the very foundation of constitutional freedom. Its general application to industry will drive brains and character out of business and make effective industrial progress impossible.

The pretense that the purpose of this law is to protect collective bargaining is absurd and preposterous. In the first place, the right of collective bargaining has never been denied, restrained, nor questioned by anyone in the history of our country.

Every contract made by a corporation or a church or a school or a municipality is an example of collective bargaining. Every sale made by farmers to business corporations and every purchase made by farmers from business corporations are examples of collective bargaining. Every sale of gasoline at filling stations is an example of collective bargaining. Everybody believes in collective bargaining and everybody practices collective bargaining. The idea that any issue can be made of collective bargaining is puerile.

* * *

BUT "collective bargaining" as used by radicals and as used in the Wagner Law is something fundamentally different from the real meaning of the term. As here used it represents a policy that repudiates collective bargaining and repudiates the constitutional right to bargain collectively. It is a system of collective compulsion that makes any type of contract or bargain impossible.

The freedom of both parties to a contract to enter into the contract or to refrain from entering the contract is absolutely essential. Any sort of compulsion exercised directly or indirectly on either party to a contract that is effective in leading the party to sign the contract destroys the contract, and is so held by every court in the land.

The one great purpose of the Wagner Law is to defeat collective bargaining by giving to employes power to compel employers to agree to their demands. In carrying out this monopolistic purpose, the law denies to the employer his constitutional right to go on the open market and make contracts with American citizens for their services.

The law takes from the employer his constitutional right of freedom of speech and freedom of press; he is not permitted to advise with his employes by word or in writing with reference to what he considers their own welfare. The law takes from minority employes their constitutional right to make their own contracts. Respectable men and women are compelled by the law to submit to being "hired out" by the labor boss.

Listen, World!

Find the Reason.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS muddled business called life—if you only knew what it was all about: if you had a set of rules you could follow—

But you haven't. So you blunder along, never knowing what will come next, getting into the most unexpected and exasperating messes.

"But what can I do about it?" you say, helplessly. "Things just happen that way, without any reason."

You're wrong. Things do not "just happen." There is a reason for everything.

There is a reason for everything you do.

There is a reason for everything that everyone else does.

Nothing is an accident.

Nothing happens "on impulse."

Everything you do ties up with something you have done before. Every act has roots which go back to the very beginnings of your life.

Yesterday, Mary, you had that dreadful quarrel with your husband. Today, it makes you sick to think of that quarrel. How could you possibly have said those cruel, bitter things.

Of course things have been pretty hard lately and Jim hasn't seemed to be putting up much fight. But you know how Jim is. You've been married to him eleven years. In spite of his faults he is a grand guy. And yet, out of a clear sky came that devastating row! Why, oh, why, do things like that happen?

They happen because we make them happen—arrange for them to happen—Mary. That row with Jim has been brewing for sixteen years; ever since your dad died when you were fifteen and you, just entering Hi, had to move into a shabby house and wear hand-me-downs. A bitter pill for a youngster to take, and that bitterness has been poisoning you, secretly, ever since.

You decided that that you weren't getting the breaks. You covered your young grudge with braggadocio, wise-cracks, moody, sulky spells, but the hurt was there. The hurt was still there after you'd left Hi, gotten a good job and were able to dress as nicely and live as well as your friends.

And every subsequent misfortune has revived the memory of that first hard knock, has intensified that secret feeling of injustice.

For every human act there is a reason. For everything in nature, every "act of God," there is also a reason. But our minds are still too limited to comprehend God's plan.

That is the difference between a man and a brute. Brutes have intelligence of a sort. They can learn certain things. They can feel love and hate, fear and desire. But brutes seldom, if ever, reason. They cannot look ahead and plan their lives, preparing for some conditions, protecting themselves against others. They are at the mercy of life.

But a man can study himself, his neighbor and his environment. He can measure his resources and plan his program. He can foresee what effect certain decisions will have upon his whole life. He can think backwards and forwards.

It is possible to study how the mind works, just as it is possible to study how the body works. They are both machines, operating in accordance with definite laws. We do not know ALL the laws, nor can we understand ALL the mysteries which govern both body and mind. Perhaps we shall never understand all of them. But we can understand enough to be, to a very great extent, "masters of our fate."

It is your own fault if "things just happen to you" in life. The man who lets things "just happen to him" lives the life of a brute—and generally meets the fate of a brute.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAID Democratic Senator Harry Schwartz, of Wyoming: "In view of conditions throughout the world, I think it highly advisable that the president remain at the helm." Countered his colleague from Colorado, Edwin Johnson: "The president . . . has harpooned and torpedoed other candidates for the presidency until now, on the very eve of the election, the majority party is marking time, floundering in confusion and trailing in public acclaim."

While Franklin D. Roosevelt held his tongue amid such talk, this week, the third-term bandwagon rolled in high gear over the hills and through the dales of Wisconsin.

There, as racket-buster Thomas E. Dewey outran Senator Vandenberg, Tuesday, for a majority of the state's 24 votes in the Republican presidential nominating convention, Democrats expressed a 3-to-1 preference for President Roosevelt over Vice President Garner.

Third Party Threat.

New Yorkers, same day, picked unpledged delegations to both party conventions.

Mr. Roosevelt's friends shellacked Garner's in four contested districts, and seers, conceded the president control of his home state's 94 delegates at Chicago. Dewey was expected to share New York's 92 votes at Philadelphia with Rochester publisher Frank Gannett.

(Of municipal elections Tuesday, two stood out: In Kansas City, a coalition of Republicans and independent Democrats kicked the Pendergast machine out of city hall. In Milwaukee, Socialist Daniel Hoan, mayor for 24 years, lost his job to handsome Carl F. Zeidler, 32.)

From CIO chief John L. Lewis, meantime, came a hint that there might be three major contenders for the presidency next fall:

Unless the Democrats nominated a candidate and adopted a platform satisfactory to "labor and the common people," he proposed to call a convention of his own "to formulate a program that each and every American can support."

At Home

Quaint Customs Dept.

1. The University of Chicago's campus newspaper reported, April 1, that President Hutchins had quit because students heckled his policy of de-emphasizing football. Another item mentioned that France had given the school its luxury liner Normandie.

2. Radio gagman Jack Benny pretended to discuss the end of the world with Orson Welles, of "Martian invasion" fame, the night before. This gave the publicity agent of Philadelphia's staid Franklin Institute an idea for plugging the planetarium's new show. Hurriedly, he had a "bulletin" read over the radio: "Scientists predict that the world will end at 3 p. m. EST tomorrow. . . . This is no April Fool joke. . . ." When thousands of calls came in, he could only murmur that he thought folks at the radio station "would know it was a stunt."

3. A cherubic 14-month-old locked himself in a Milwaukee bathroom on April 1. His frantic mother called for firemen. As they were climbing in a window, he unlocked the door and beamed: "Apwul Pool."

Plumbers In Court.

Liberals long have argued that we can't have real prosperity until we build more homes. The reason we don't build more homes, they say, is that we can't: Costs have been pushed skyscraper-high by colluding contractors and labor leaders.

"To reduce building costs through elimination of illegal and costly restraints," the federal justice department began cracking down on the construction business last fall. Now, 74 indictments involving 985 defendants from most major cities have been returned. Last week-end 102 persons in the plumbing industry were indicted in Cleveland.

Militant Salesmanship.

"Henceforth," says H. W. Prentis, jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, "industry will decline to 'turn the other cheek.' It will meet unjustified attacks with undeniable facts, always courteously, but nonetheless militantly." That was the keynote, sounded this week, in a campaign by NAM's 8,000 members to re-sell America, between now and election day, on the principle of "free enterprise."

* * *

Gargantua's Travels.

New Yorkers set their seasonal clocks when Gargantua comes to town. When 45 silver railway cars bearing the "greatest show on earth"—including the gorilla—coasted into the city early this week, they knew spring surely had arrived. And the largest crowd in years was on hand for the circus parade.

Abroad

Churchill's Job.

Pudgy, bustling Winston Churchill piloted His Majesty's navy through much of the World war. In post-war years, it was rumored, he yearned to be prime minister. He was never invited: many Britons felt he was too combustible for peacetime.

But when war again approached, last summer, they clamored for the 65-year-old Nazi-hater. The first thing Prime Minister Chamberlain did after declaring war was to ask his chief heckler to take charge again of the admiralty. And this week Churchill was given the job of running the war for Britain.

America's No-See Policy.

In 1932 Secretary of State Stimson proclaimed that the U. S. would recognize no "situation" brought about by armed force in violation of the Kellogg Peace pact. By the move, apparently, he hoped to scare the Japanese out of Manchuria.

During the next seven years Herr Hitler, Il Duce and the Japanese generals went a long way toward redrawing the geography books. But Cordell Hull followed his predecessor's lead, refused to recognize their conquests.

Last fall Hull failed to note that Poland disappeared. And he is paying no attention to Japan's latest puppet in China, Wang Ching-wei.

Now the state department is worrying about whether it should admit that Stalin is boss of a chunk of former Finland, set up this week as a member of the U. S. S. R. Indications are the grab may be recognized because the Finns themselves negotiated the peace treaty.

Health And Diet

Fibrosititis Is Spring Ailment.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WE, IN America, have been pampered pets of Nature for a number of years. We have had about 15 years of unusually mild and temperate winters all over the country. But this spring, with a severe winter behind us, we may begin to see examples of the English disease, fibrositis, or painful nodules.

It has not been reported very often in American literature, and I think there is no doubt that it has some relation to cold climates and severe weather. It is by no means unknown in the northern states and in Canada.

The painful nodules occur anywhere under the skin; they may be in the muscles. Favorite places are along the neck, in the edge of the big triangular muscle that goes from the back of the head to the point of the shoulder; in the lumbar muscles of the back; in front in the breast and abdominal muscles. The nodules are painful and cause muscle spasm. They are often found in the course of massage.

Trapezius Myositis.

That triangular muscle which forms a sheet along the back of the neck from the promonitary of the hind part of the skull to the corner of the shoulder, the trapezius muscle, is the seat of an affection that is called trapezius myositis. (Myositis means muscle inflammation.)

It is a hangover in spring from a long siege of catarrh or infection of the nose and throat. There is pain noticed on turning the head or extending the neck. With fatigue of the muscles of the neck, there is apt to be headache in the back of the head. Tenderness can be elicited at the point of insertion of the muscle at the shoulder and back of the head.

Treatment consists, first, of free drainage of the nasal sinuses.

Another special form of fibrositis is panniculitis, which consists of painful spots in the fat of the abdomen, upper arm, upper leg, knees and calves. The typical sufferer is a middle-aged woman of pasty appearance. The skin is thickened and bound down so that it cannot be picked up as usual. Besides heat and massage, small amounts of thyroid extract are often beneficial.

Heat as Treatment.

In treatment of any form of fibrositis, heat takes an important place. It is especially valuable because it can be given at home, by the household doctor. It may be moist or dry heat—mustard poultice, hot moist compresses, electric pad, hot bricks, hot iron, applied over a folded towel or flannel.

The best and most effective treatment is by massage. The fibrous nodules can be broken up and massaged away by a special type of heavy stroking and kneading massage, which is applied directly to the nodules. It produces subsequent relief, although it may be painful at the time. The patient should know the nature of the condition and be aware that the treatment will at first cause more pain, but that subsequent treatments will be less painful and eventually result in the disappearance of the nodules.

Quotes

John D. Rockefeller, jr.: "Any attempt to keep the hand of the past on the pulse of the future, to solve the problems of yesterday can, at best, be only indifferently successful."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt: "We have always had migratory workers throughout the country but only a few of us knew about it and our voices were lost in the wilderness."

People

All-American Quiz.

Not many of America's estimated 132,000,000 people live along the Seven Devils mountains and the treacherous Salmon river in west-central Idaho. On a map the 1,000-square-mile area is a blank. But somewhere in its wilderness are three dozen hardy families who must be counted by Uncle Sam in the 1940 census, which began last Tuesday.

Few men in the area could be coaxed into taking this nose-counting job—so, for the third time in 20 years, it was taken by Mrs. Elva Canfield, 67, a retired schoolmarm. She travels on skis and packhorse.

She is just one of the 120,000 enumerators who are finding out, not only the U. S. population, but such facts as how many are unemployed, how many live in tourist camps, how many are dust bowl victims, how many own their own homes. Most enumerators will receive four cents for each resident checked. Mrs. Canfield will get a little more because of the distance she must travel.

FDR Turns Editor.

The boss of all White House newsmen has long been genial, chess-playing Republican J. Russell Young, of the Washington Star. Mr. Roosevelt affectionately calls him "Senator"—and, last week-end, named him a commissioner for the District of Columbia.

This bothered the printer of a local weekly who had just set up in advance a full-column story urging the appointment of another man. So the printer and the president—who likes to recall that he, too, was once a publisher—held a conference. Together, they figured out a way to avoid resetting the type simply by altering a few sentences.

Science

Elastic Life-Savers.

Mental workers often die in middle age of suffocation of the heart—its failure to receive enough oxygen from the arteries that feed its muscles. Doctors call this disease coronary thrombosis. Men with bay-window stomachs can stave it off, the America College of Physicians heard this week in Cleveland, by wearing elastic belts to help them breathe deeply.

High blood pressure, the assembled doctors were told, has displaced heart disease as No. 1 killer of American. Toll: 375,000 live a year. Cause: unknown, though heredity is a factor.

* * *

Frequency Modulation.

Radio engineers have tinkered for years on hookups to eliminate static. Major E. K. Armstrong, of New York, now thinks he's hit it. He calls his system "frequency modulation." One hitch is that its short-wave signals don't bend with the earth's curvature. Thus FM's broadcast range is only 45 to 60 miles. This difficulty could be met, Armstrong told the federal communications commission recently, by setting up chains of stations to operate on the same frequency range.

In Short

Signed: A 13-week commercial radio contract with a soap company, by Eleanor Roosevelt.

Sentenced: 36 Communist exmembers of the French Chamber of Deputies, to five years in prison, for obeying orders from Moscow.

Unimpressed: President Roosevelt, by the prospect of an "immediate" just and lasting peace, after hearing the report of his peace prospector, Sumner Welles.

Died: Sir John Gilmour, British minister of shipping; Charles Dow, pioneer in Wisconsin's Progressive party; John Atkinson Hobson, British economist and author; Mayor E. George Sewell, of Miami.

JASINSKY-SCHADEK NUPTIALS PERFORMED

Couple Married This Morning Before Altar of St. Peter's Catholic Church; Leave for Washington Wedding Trip.

FORMALITY marked the mid-morning marriage today of Miss Mary Ann Jasinsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jasinsky, 65 McPherson street, to Anton Schadek, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Schadek, sr., 378 First avenue. The couple exchanged their vows before the altar of St. Peter's Catholic church at 10:30 a. m. Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiated, and Raymond Baum presided at the organ for the nuptial mass. The wedding music was sung by the children's choir of the church. The double ring service was read.

The altar was decorated with palms, ferns and two vases of gladioli. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

She was attired in a double net gown made over a taffeta foundation with a slight train effect. The top of the long waisted bodice and the sleeves were trimmed in rows of Chantilly lace. Her fingertip length veil was worn virgin style, the double circular net being attached to a coronet style headpiece of orange blossoms.

Her sister, Miss Martha Rita Jasinsky, was maid of honor. She wore a petal blue frock made with a square neckline trimmed with Chantilly lace bands. The double net skirt, and the waist of the gown were similarly trimmed. A small garden flower hat in pink tied with a taffeta bow completed the costume. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of mixed pastel blooms.

Miss Theresa Hopp, bridesmaid, was attired in a pink gown made exactly like the maid of honor's, her small hat was in blue, and her bouquet was also of pastel flowers.

Peter Joseph Schadek, brother of the bridegroom, and Thomas Horner, Shelby, were best man and groomsman respectively. Ushers were the brothers of the pair, Paul Jasinsky and Paul Schadek.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Jasinsky wore a costume of pale lavender lace with a corsage of Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother was attired in rose lace with a corsage of red roses.

At 1 o'clock today a dinner was served to relatives of the pair at the Leiderkranz hall, after which a reception was held at the hall for several hundred friends of the pair.

Mr. and Mrs. Schadek left late this afternoon for a week's wedding trip to Washington, D. C. For traveling the bride selected a rose costume with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Upon their return to the city they will make their home at 372 First avenue.

The bride attended the St. Peter's schools, while Mr. Schadek had attended school in Shelby. Both are employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which they should make the most of opportunities for gaining the favoritism or substantial support or co-operation of those in influential positions.

A child born on this day may be fairly active and enterprising, and have the laudable objective of standing high in the good graces of its superiors.

For Monday, April 8.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for excellent prospects for attaining ambiitons in either fame, fortune, power or purely personal pleasure. In all directions propitious forces reign, assisting to cherished goals in productive, intellectual pursuits, financial standing, social position or philanthropic purpose. It is a time for pushing to the gates of heart's desire.

Those whose birthday it is have a very progressive and pleasant year assured, with all aspirations under expansive, glowing and propitious impetus for outstanding achievement. This may be in business, intellectual or social activities, or in avenues of purely personal indulgence or gratification.

Formal Banquet Honors Founders Of Social Group

In commemoration of the founding of Chi Omega sorority in Fayetteville, Ark., on April 5, 1895, members of the Chi Omega Alumnae club gathered for a formal banquet at the Susie Janis home on Park avenue west road last evening.

Candle lighting services in honor of the founders were conducted by Miss Marianne Springer and Mrs. Carlton S. Fernyak, after which dinner was served at one long table. A bouquet of white carnations, the sorority flower, combined with red carnations and yellow daisies, to carry out the colors of the organization, centered the table, which was lighted by tall red and yellow tapers.

Mrs. John McLean was the toastmistress, and after-dinner speeches were made by the president, Mrs. Robert Beck of Crestline, and the treasurer, Mrs. Eugene Miller of Loudonville. Arrangements for the affair were in charge of the social chairman, Miss Wilma Walker, Mrs. Harold Butzloff and Mrs. McLean.

The next regular meeting of the sorority will be an event of May 6, when Miss Martha Buesser will entertain at her home on West First street. She will be assisted by Mrs. Lister Graf of Loudonville. A book review will be presented by Mrs. John Goff, the guest speaker at that time.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I think we can dismiss the possibility of those men getting into the attic by ordinary means of ingress," he said. "They would not try it in the daytime, even if the house were not adequately guarded. I will tell you something you have not known, that the temporary wire fence enclosing the part of the door-yard nearest the house is electrified and manned by guards, while the gates, heavily guarded, are kept closed, except when we desire to see certain people. But, of course, no one outside dreams of the electrification, so an unwary prowler would have been unable to get in. We must look elsewhere, and, if I am not mistaken in my conjecture, we shall not have to look far."

He paused and looked speculatively at us.

"This was a seafaring community—all this end of the island in the old days," he said. "It was also a community in which certain taxes were unpopular, and smuggling was common. Some of the old houses in this part of the island had secret exits and stairways—"

"Oh!" I breathed, involuntarily, for, from my earliest childhood, the very thought of a secret staircase has enchanted and intrigued me.

"Yes," my father said, smiling at me. "I believe there must be something of the sort in the old part of this house, and Jack Leslie has found out about it. I also believe that he intends to use it to make a surprise attack on us, and that he sent these men we have just captured to make the preliminary arrangements."

The picture he called up was so appalling that I had no words of comment.

"There are three ways in which we can determine this," he went on, "all of which we shall try, if necessary. First, we can make a search of the attic, but we shall have to wait until the gas fumes are completely out. Second, we can try to get the information from the men themselves, a painful and laborious process—painful for them and laborious for us."

His smile was grim and a bit terrifying, but he went swiftly on, ignoring any possible reactions of ours to his suggestion.

"The third way," he said, "is the action I wish you to take. There is a chance that Miss Annie Carman, who is reputed to be exceedingly proud of her family, may have in her possession a plan of the old house, may know of a secret staircase. How you will get that secret from her, I frankly do not know. If it were used for smuggling purposes, she may be ashamed of it—or she may be proud of it. In either case she may consider it beneath her dignity to give to strangers a secret which was no doubt entrusted to her by a father or mother long since dead.

"I must leave everything to your tact and your resourcefulness. If you fail, I shall not blame you. But if you succeed, and get me the means of locating the secret from this house, you will aid me inestimably."

He looked directly at me, and I felt compelled to answer.

"If I don't get it, Father, it won't be from lack of trying," I promised earnestly.

"That goes for me, too, Chief," Lillian said. "But I'd like to ask two questions. How do you want us to travel over to Miss Carman's, and do you want us to get that sample clothing for Harry before or after we make this trip?"

New Ways With Old Favorites

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes, Fish Souffle and Crab Croquettes are all good dishes for springtime menus. For tomato dish, use six tomatoes, cracker meal, salt and pepper, two tablespoons finely-minced green pepper, two tablespoons melted butter. Remove thin slice from stem end of tomatoes. Take out seeds and pulp, sprinkle inside of tomato with salt, invert and let stand 20 minutes to drain. Add an equal amount of cracker meal to pulp. Add seasoning, onion, green pepper and butter. Refill tomatoes with mixture. Place in greased pan. Sprinkle top of tomatoes with cracker meal and dot with butter. Bake in 400 degrees F. oven for about 20 minutes. Canned corn, chopped hard-boiled eggs or grated cheese may be added to the recipe with success. Serves six.

New Souffle Recipe.

This Fish Souffle may prove tastier than the one for which I gave a recipe recently. It is made with two cups cooked flaked fish, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, teaspoon lemon juice, one-half cup cracker meal, two cups thin, well-seasoned white sauce, three well-beaten egg yolks, tablespoon finely-minced parsley and three stiffly-beaten egg whites. Remove bones from fish, flake and add salt, pepper and lemon juice. Add cracker meal to the white sauce and cook two minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add flaked fish, well-beaten egg yolks and parsley. Fold in egg whites and turn into greased baking dish. Set in pan of hot water and bake in 350 degrees F. oven until firm, about 40 minutes. Six portions.

For Gala Meal.

Crab Croquettes will do right by any luncheon, turning a simple meal into a gala repast. For six servings use six tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, one cup milk, salt and pepper, two cups flaked crabmeat, teaspoon lemon juice, one-half teaspoon salt, one beaten egg yolk and cracker meal. Make a white sauce of the first ingredients. Sprinkle crabmeat with lemon juice, add with salt and egg yolk to white sauce. Cook five minutes. Remove from heat, spread in a shallow pan, cool and chill in refrigerator. Shake in form of croquettes, dip in beaten egg and roll in cracker meal. Fry in deep fat (375 degrees F.) until brown. Serve with tartar sauce or a rich cream sauce.

For another grand crabmeat dish, saute three tablespoons minced onion, one cup crabmeat and one-half cup chopped shrimp in butter or oil until beginning to brown. Brown two tablespoons butter. Stir in three tablespoons flour and cook until golden colored. Slowly add two cups milk, stirring constantly. Add to fish mixture and season to taste. Pour mixture over hot split biscuits.

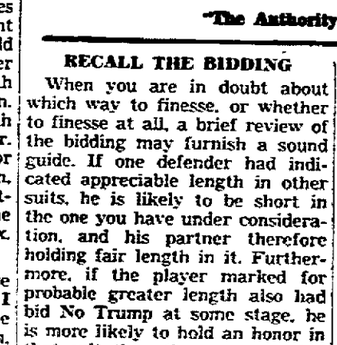
RECALL THE BIDDING

When you are in doubt about which way to finesse, or whether to finesse at all, a brief review of the bidding may furnish a sound guide. If one defender had indicated appreciable length in other suits, he is likely to be short in the one you have under consideration, and his partner therefore holding fair length in it. Furthermore, if the player marked for probable greater length also had bid No Trump at some stage, he is more likely to hold an honor in that suit than the man who bid other suits.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	2 ♥	Dbl
3 ♣	Dbl	3 ♦	Pass
3 NT

West let that go without doubling because he thought he had a better chance to set it than diamonds if the opponent escaped to that suit.

East led his spade 3 to the K. West cashed the A and led a third, clearing the suit. Declarer then played diamonds. First he laid down his A, then played to the K, hoping to drop the Q, but being disappointed. He then shot a third diamond to East's Q, and a spade return enabled the opponents to set the contract.

Had North figured correctly, he would have made his contract. West had shown both a biddable spade suit and enough hearts to double that suit, so he could not have as many diamonds and clubs as East. The latter also had bid No Trump on his first turn, making it likely he had a prospective stopper in diamonds. This reasoning should have caused a finesse of the diamond J on the second round. By so doing, North could have taken five tricks in that suit, two clubs and one each in the majors, for a game.

Hands Create Problems

MME. QUI VIVE

One may be blessed with "pale hands, pink-tipped, like lotus buds" and still have hands that are not attractive. If movements are not graceful they do a flop so far as beauty laurels are concerned.

Observe the woman, tense and jittery, who grips the chair arms as if she were afraid of falling out. No restful soul is she; no fun chatting with her. Bad for her nervous system, or is it that her nervous system is bad for her hands, making veins visible or creating an unbecoming redness?

There is the femme who gives you the cold, fishy handshake. You know the kind. No warmth in her hands or her heart. She is likely to be calculating and suspicious. Doesn't make friends easily. Yezzum! Hands tell tales, plenty of them.

The shy, self-conscious girl has a lot of hand trouble. She doesn't know what to do with them, wants to hide them. If she would just forget them, let them relax in her lap, with fingers intertwined they will take care of themselves. It is a big help when the skin surface is satin smooth, nails like pink shells.

Large knuckles are the curse of the woman who has done heavy work all her life. They should be massaged faithfully with lanoline twice a day.

Dentzil Van Vlerah, 38, Dies At Home; Funeral Services Set For Sunday.

Beside the widow, he is survived by two sons, Ronald Leroy and Morris Allen, both at home; his father, Alvarado Van Vlerah who lives at Continental, O.; a sister, Mrs. John Mooney of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; and a brother, Cloyce of Willard.

A garage mechanic, he came to Galion 21 months ago from Plymouth.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. in the Snyder funeral home. Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of First Methodist church, will be assisted by Rev. J. C. Campbell of Cleveland, and burial will be made in Maple View cemetery, New Haven, O.

Friends may call Saturday evening at the funeral home.

MARRIED AT CHURCH

GALION—Marriage vows were exchanged this morning at 11 o'clock between Margaret Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dunn of Harding Way East, and Theodore Kirtland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kirtland of Orange street, at the parsonage of the First Methodist church.

Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of the church, read the single ring ceremony. The couple was unattended.

For her marriage, the bride chose a smartly fashioned black suit, with black and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of rosebuds.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds left for a short wedding trip. They will make their home for the present at 159 Orange street.

Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from Galion high school in the same class, 1934. She is employed at the Stratbury Manufacturing company, and Mr. Kirtland is stock clerk at the North Electric Manufacturing company.

TAKES NEW POST

GALION—Homer Curfman, former Galion resident, has been transferred from Kansas City, Kansas, to Long Island, New York. He is assistant superintendent of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, Inc. Mr. Curfman, his wife and daughter, have been visiting with his mother, and at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. H. Seeger and family in Columbus.

THEATERS

First Big Role.

Giving Mickey Rooney his first portrayal of a real life character, a role in which the boy star has an opportunity to prove that he is a genuine actor, "Young Tom Edison," opens at the Ohio theater Saturday. Not only does this picture present Rooney with his first biographical role, but it is the first such role ever given a juvenile player. It also marks the second teaming of Mickey with Virginia Weidler, who scored as his nemesis in "Out West With the Hardys." In the two other stellar roles are Fay Bainter and George Bancroft.

Steinbeck Story.

Starring Burgess Meredith, Betty Field, and Lon Chaney, jr., in the cast of "Of Mice and Men," this picture, which begins at the Madison theater Saturday unfolds a richly emotional and tensely dramatic story of the migratory ranch workers of California. Based on the best-selling novel of the same name by John Steinbeck, and transferred to the screen from Eugene Solow's adaptation of the Broadway stage hit, it tells the story of George and Lennie and Mae on Aguora Ranch.

Family Next Door.

The Bumsteads, that unique screen family which behaves like the family next door return to the Majestic theater Sunday in "Blondie Takes a Vacation," one in the hilarious series based on the celebrated Chic Young comic strip, which appears in the News-Journal. The new film takes the Bumsteads out of their home where they managed to find trouble enough and into the great open spaces and even more trouble.

"Parents on Trial" with Jean Parker and Johnny Downs in the leading roles is the co-feature.

"Four Wives."

"Four Wives," the first sequel to last year's hit "Four Daughters," will be shown at the Ritz theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The original cast of the first picture is back again—Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola Lane, Gale Page, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains, May Robson and all the others. The co-feature "Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love" pictures the hilarious adventures of a traveling salesman and a runaway heiress in a story which blends music with gay romance. Peggy Moran and Tom Brown have the leads.

Laurel and Hardy.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, comedy team, return to the screen in "The Flying Deuces," which begins at the Park theater Sunday. This time the jesters comedy have taken to the airways as a background for their misadventures, a thrilling and hilarious climax being provided in their final sequence when the boys, as two Foreign Legionnaires sentenced to die for desertion take a 24 hour endurance ship. The second feature is "Goose Step," a poignant story of patriotic sacrifice and love of home and family.

LEGION ELECTS

ASHLAND — Ray Keen of Ashland was named as commander of the local V. F. W. post here at an election meeting held in the W. F. W. hall.

NORWAY TAKES STRONG STAND

Threatens War If Shipping Interference Continued By Belligerents.

ceived the Norwegian and Swedish ministers last night, authorized circles said today, and also gave them a note bearing on relations between the British-French allies and the two Scandinavian countries.

The contents of these notes remained secret, but British diplomatic sources said they constituted a polite but firm definition of the allied position against use of neutral waters.

Exports Lowered.

Koht said the Swedish iron ore exports had dropped to one-fourth their pre-war tonnage and that much more went to England than to Germany.

He contended that the importance of the ore exports was exaggerated, but that in any case free shipping through Norwegian waters was of at least as much value to the British as to their enemy.

Koht also sharply criticized sinking of Norwegian merchantmen by German warcraft. He said Norway had lost 54 ships totalling 120,000 tons, and "in three cases sinking was made in accordance with international law."

Nevertheless, he said, the only war thinkable for Norway would be one "in which we are forced to defend our independence and freedom."

The blockade chiefs of France and Britain conferred in London, one subject of their study being air transport with Germany, it was reported.

Admit Air Holes.

It was acknowledged that the "air holes" in the blockade have gained importance, but possible methods of plugging them were not disclosed.

Italy, the non-belligerent partner of Germany, was prepared meanwhile for total mobilization at a moment's notice. A new law authorizes requisition of all citizens' services, including women and children more than 13 years old.

There was another neutrality echo far distant from Norway. The Argentine government, concerned that escape of three officers of the destroyed German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee might reflect on her neutrality, was taking strict measures to prevent any recurrence.

About 1,000 officers and men of the German warship were interned in Argentina after they destroyed their ship last Dec. 17.

The United States quietly observed Army day on this 23rd anniversary of the country's entry into the World war. The date found American defense forces in the process of streamlining.

SHEEP CLAIMS SHOW DECLINE

Damage Awards for 3 Months Drop to $117, Lowest In Recent Years.

Richland county dogs were on their good behavior during the past three months when claims for sheep killed by dogs dropped to $117, the lowest figure for a three-month period in recent years.

County commissioners had approved payment of the claims today. Only 15 farmers reported losses of sheep in the first quarter of the year.

Claims for $1,000 were approved at the end of the final quarter of last year and commissioners said the quarterly losses had been as high as $1,400. Claims are paid from receipts from dog tags.

Commissioners said the good showing for the first quarter of the year probably was due partly to the extreme cold which kept sheep near shelter where dogs could not easily reach them.

5,000 CARDS GO OUT TO FUND DRIVE WORKERS

Names of Individuals on List Of Contributors Given to Campaign Majors.

Officials of the 1940 Community Fund campaign launched the final plans for the 21st annual drive yesterday when more than 5,000 cards of individual contributors were distributed to division majors at a meeting at the Evergreens restaurant.

The drive opens April 29, but majors indicated yesterday that a number of contacts will be made before the opening date.

Clyde K. Smaltz, general chairman of the drive, expressed the belief that the campaign could be completed this year within three days. Majors are expected to have all of their cards distributed by the end of next week.

Carl H. Henkel, president of the Community Fund, who addressed the group yesterday, explained that requests of the nine agencies that make up the Community Fund and which totaled approximately $75,000, had been cut down to figures totaling $57,000 because the budget committee believed that the latter figure came nearer what the city could give this year for maintenance of the agencies.

Hope for Higher Figure.

"However this is a minimum figure which has been set up," he explained, "and we hope that a higher figure will be reached. Whatever is contributed over the minimum will be pro-rated among the agencies. If it is possible for the agencies themselves to increase the minimum figure, they will profit by it."

Mayor W. J. Locke, who also spoke at the meeting said he "had a feeling that there is greater appreciation and enthusiasm for the Community Fund this year than in previous years." He pointed to the success of last year's campaign and said he believed that much of the enthusiasm of last year had been carried over to this year.

George Draffan, a vice chairman on the campaign, also expressed the belief that the goal would be topped again this year.

Demaret Ties Mangrum for Masters' Lead

Texas Star Takes Role of Favorite as Annual Golf Tournament Reaches Third Round.

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(UP)—They're out today to try to stamp out the Texas prairie fire—little Jimmy Demaret from Houston who has swept into a tie for the lead in the seventh annual Masters golf tournament.

Going into the third round this afternoon Demaret is tied at 139 with Llyod Mangrum, a fellow Texan, who fired a record-breaking 64 in the first round Thursday. But the law of averages caught up with Mangrum yesterday—it just isn't on the books for a man to have two consecutive rounds at that incredible score—and he took a 75, three over par.

* * *

Today the feeling among the pros and amateurs in this high class field is that Demaret is the man to watch and that Mangrum has shot his bolt.

* * *

For all persons in Dixie who love golf much of the glamor went out of this tournament today, for Bobby Jones announced he would have to drop out. He has been bothered by bursitis in his left shoulder and yesterday he was attempting to play by using his right arm only and merely employing his left one to guide the club. Despite that, he shot a creditable 76, which together with his 79 of the first day, gave him 155 for 36 holes.

There are 36 holes left to play, and there will be no rest for either Demaret or Mangrum. Hot on their heels are the holders of the three major golf championships in this country—Byron Nelson, open champion; Bud Ward, amateur champion, and Henry Picard, P. G. A. champion. Nelson is two strokes off the pace at 141 and Ward and Picard have 142.

And back of them are plenty who can cause trouble. Slammin' Sammy Snead played a steady round at even par 72 yesterday, which gave him 143 for 36 holes and the law of averages says he ought to break loose with a hot round any minute now. Willie Goggin also has 143 and at 144 are Jug McSpaden and Harry Cooper.

* * *

Others still in contention at 145 are Dick Metz, Paul Runyan, Wilford Wehrle, Chicago amateur, Al Watrous, Ed Dudley Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour and Craig Wood. Only a miracle can get anybody else up into the running.

* * *

The best round of golf played here yesterday was fired by Bud Ward, who spun a dazzling 32 on the first nine and came back in par 36 for a 68—four under par. He was the only man to break 70 all day and needed that 68 to put him up in the van.

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C. —(U.P.)— Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds and Jim Bagby of the Boston Red Sox face each other on the mound today in an exhibition game.

The Reds and Red Sox exhausted their supply of nine dozen baseballs yesterday in an exhibition game at Greensboro in eight and one-third innings. The rock and sand infield and a lot of fouling helped to use up the balls and end the game early with the score favoring the Reds, 12-10.

The two clubs got a total of 23 hits, including two homers apiece. Catcher Willard Hershberger was the day's outstanding batsman, getting a homer, two doubles and a single, and driving in three runs and scoring three for the National league champs.

Mike McCormick, Red outfielder, also got four hits.

Whitey Moore pitched five innings and gave Boston eight hits and all of their runs. He was succeeded on the hill by Elmer Riddle.

Brandt Leads 'Blacks' to Victory In Grid Contest

A last-quarter touchdown march enabled the "Blacks" to turn back the "Whites" in the first intra-squad contest staged by the Mansfield high footballers at Davey field yesterday.

* * *

Adam Brandt climaxed a spectacular 30-yard march in the fading seconds of the game by smashing over from the 12-yard line for the score. He added the extra point from placement.

* * *

The "Whites," who chalked up 10 first downs to the "Blacks" five, but couldn't penetrate the winners goal line. Jim Templeton's punting set the stage for the march.

Henry's brilliant 55-yard return of a punt in the first half was a highlight of the contest. Henry and Winbigler were outstanding for the losers.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

AUGUSTA, Ga. — (U.P.) — Honey chile, here's a passel of notes on the Masters' Golf tournament, and all of them were written on a hot biscuit with a drumstick dipped in gravy: If practice makes perfect, then Lloyd Mungrum, the youngster who shot the record of 64 in the first round, is going to wind up shooting 18 straight holes in one some day . . . What do you think Mangrum did after scoring that par-shattering 64? . . . That's right . . . he went out and practiced until dark.

Sammy Snead's biggest trouble as a golfer is his inability to keep from losing so much weight . . . in two tournaments the Slammin' West Virginian drops from 15 to 20 pounds, and winds up so weak he can barely get more than 275 yards with his tee shots . . . Johnny Bulla, the big fellow who came close to winning the national open last year playing with a thirty-five cent drugstore ball, is spending his morning here flying a plane over the countryside.

The longest hitter in golf right now is Benny Hogan, who isn't much bigger than his driver, which is one of the heaviest in the business. . . .

Don't be surprised if the national open championship is played at Forth Worth, Texas, in 1941 . . . It's time the west got more national tourneys . . . the last open in the west (Denver, 1938) drew the biggest crowd since Bobby Jones was pulling them through the gate. . . .

Henry Cotton, England's greatest professional, who is now in service at the front, once said that Ed Dudley, home pro here, was the finest swinger of a golf club who ever lived . . . You can count fifteen pros right here who will agree with Cotton. . . Harry Cooper took such lusty swings at the ball on the first and second tees yesterday that his hat flew off.

COACH RESIGNS

ALLIANCE, O., — (AP) — Dr. George M. Wilcoxon, who produced an undefeated football team in 1932, has resigned as Alliance high school football and basketball coach and will devote full time to the practice of medicine.

Not Easy This Season to Select Rookie of Year

Unable to Find Any Williams or Kellers Among 1940 Prospects.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—It is not as easy to point a finger at the "rookie of the year" this spring as last year, when Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox towered like a lighthouse over the other baseball freshmen.

Williams more than fulfilled every expectation, and had only one serious rival among the big league beginners—Charlie Keller of the Yankees. Williams' average of .327 was not quite equal to Keller's .334, but the limber Boston youngster proved himself a much greater distance hitter.

* * *

Is there a slugger like Williams or Keller in the 1940 crop, or a pitcher like Atley Donald? Possibly, but those who have watched the juvenile stars train from Florida to California have failed notably to agree on the one most likely to succeed.

* * *

Dominic DiMaggio, another Red Sox recruit, carries the biggest burden of advance ballyhoo.

Dom had little opportunity to prove his ability before he injured an ankle in an exhibition game at Tampa, so the season may be well advanced before the Sox learn whether they received their money's worth.

In the meantime, DiMaggio has surrendered the rookie headlines to Johnny Rucker of the Giants. The kid from Atlanta has been pounding the ball at a .400 clip in the south and appears to have clinched a berth in the Giants' outfield. Here again, however, is a player like DiMaggio who is not a distance hitter.

Oscar Vitt, the Cleveland manager, believes he has a truly great shortstop in Lou Boudreau, who finished with the Indians last year but still may be classified as a rookie. But, even if Lou's fielding is everything Oscar says it is, he still has to prove he can hit big league pitching.

WINS VARSITY BERTH

Bill Wilkins, erstwhile Madison high grid star, is one of six freshmen placed on the varsity team at Akron university during the spring practice sessions. Wilkins is expected to see action at an end position on the 1940 combine.

Three Hurlers Wage Battle For Position

Humphries, Zuber, Broaca Likely Candidates.

MACON, Ga. — (U.P.) — Johnny Humphries, Bill Zuber, and Johnny Broaca seemed today to be the Cleveland Indians' most likely candidates for the one remaining pitching position.

* * *

Manager Oscar Vitt will carry ten pitchers after the deadline for squad reductions. The first nine probably will be Feller, Harder, Allen, Milnar, Smith, Hudlin, Eisenstat, Naymick and Dobson.

* * *

Ken Keltner was expected back today after missing yesterday's game because of sinus trouble.

The exhibition series between the Indians and the New York Giants reached the half way mark today. The Giant's hold a 4-3 edge on this year's play.

Before a small crowd, the Indians lost to the Giant's 15-5 at Cordele, Ga. Pulford and Eis

PAM— Further Explanations! By A. W. Brewerton

PAMELA, I DIDN'T MEAN TO TELL YOU ANYTHING ABOUT THIS BUT IT'S JUST TOO GOOD T'KEEP! THAT WAS JACK DONOVAN I WAS TALKING TO— —HE'S A HUSKY YOUNG DETECTIVE I KNOW; AN EX-PUGILIST, TOO!
4-6
--I WAS TELLING HIM ABOUT THESE THREATS THEY'VE BEEN MAKING — THOUGHT IT MIGHT BE A GOOD IDEA FOR HIM TO KEEP AN EYE ON THINGS! — WELL, I DIDN'T THINK THEY'D REALLY TRY ANYTHING, BUT HE SUGGESTED MAKING UP TO LOOK LIKE ME! — AND HE MADE A REMARKABLE JOB OF IT, TOO — HE'S ABOUT MY HEIGHT ---
--AND HE WORE A WIG, HAT AND COAT LIKE MINE! HE HUNG AROUND MY HOME NEIGHBORHOOD, WENT IN AND OUT OF MY APARTMENT, LOITERED IN LONESOME SPOTS — — AND HANGED IF A COUPLE OF THUGS DIDN'T COME UP AND START TO GRAB HIM! — COURSE THEY THOUGHT THEY HAD A--
--DECREPIT, FEEBLE OLD "FATHER TIME" LIKE ME TO DEAL WITH, SO WHEN HE STARTED SWINGING ON THEM — HE'S STRONG AS A BULL — IT TOOK THEM SO OFF THEIR GUARD, HE KNOCKED THEM UNCONSCIOUS!
GOODNESS! — BUT, COLONEL, THAT SHOWS THEY — MEANT THOSE THREATS!
MY DEAR, I'M TAKING EVERY PRECAUTION! — DON'T WORRY!

THEY ARE ALL DIMMED BY THE DAZZLING SPLENDOR OF YOUR BEAUTY, MY LITTLE JEWEL!

DICK TRACY— Backstair. —By CHESTER GOULD

SH, SH.. QUIET! HE TRIED TO KILL YOU WITH THAT HOIST. BUT THE BLOW ONLY RESTORED YOUR MEMORY. EASY NOW!
I....I REMEMBER EVERYTHING....THIS IS WHERE HE KILLED...
SH, SH!
THAT WAS A RATHER FUNNY ACCIDENT, MASON. IT HAD JUST THE OPPOSITE RESULT FROM WHAT YOU PLANNED.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
AT THIS INSTANT, A DARK FIGURE BEGINS TO ASCEND AN IRON STAIRWAY AT THE REAR OF THE FACTORY. THAT STAIRWAY LEADS TO A SKYLIGHT OVERLOOKING THE MACHINE SHOP FLOOR.
